

Year: 2006

Location: France

Program: Museum / Gallery

Maison du projet

To inform the inhabitants and visitors of Metz about the design and building process of the new Centre Pompidou Metz, a temporary exhibition space was built on the site. The main structure consists of a light corrugated steel roof spanning between two rented containers. The containers function as structure and storage space and at the same time can be used as a belvedere on the building site.