

Year: 2013

Location: Switzerland

Program: Museum

Rietberg Museum Summer Pavilion

This summer pavilion is constructed annually during the summer season. The roof structure is made of lightweight CFRP trusses, allowing easy assembly and disassembly without the use of heavy machinery. The columns consist of two types of paper tubes with different diameters, allowing them to be nested for compact storage. A membrane was used for the roof, and multi-layered polycarbonate panels were applied to the exterior walls to further simplify both assembly and storage.