

Year: 2002
Location: Japan
Program: Residential

Eda Housing

Situated next to a train station, the Eda housing complex incorporates a commercial area. To take in the flow of people coming from the station, the commercial area steps up gradually towards a semi-public courtyard. From this courtyard, residents enter into their respective maisonettes, which are constructed of two container units each.